NHS too sick to survive, claims Javid

FORMER health secretary Sajid Javid has called for a royal commission into the NHS, saying the service is "frozen in time".

Ahead of the 75th anniversary today, Mr Javid said both major political parties privately believe the NHS is "unsustainable" in its current form and will increasingly be unable to cope with surging demand.

Mr Javid said a "dispassionate and honest assessment" of the NHS is required to "make sure the NHS is here in another 75 years". He said: "No universal healthcare system is perfect, but when you compare health outcomes in the UK with similar countries, it is clear that for decades we have fallen short."

"Since it was established in 1948, the world has changed – yet much of the institution remains frozen in time."

Railway cooks latest to strike

RAILWAY caterers are to launch a 48-hour strike in a row over pay.

Members of the Rail, Maritime and Transport union (RMT) employed by contractor DHL providing catering services for Avanti trains walked out from 10pm last night.

RMT general secretary Mick Lynch said: "DHL members want pay justice from an employer who can easily settle this dispute with a decent offer."

"It is workers at DHL in catering and elsewhere that create the billions in wealth that shareholders and directors at the company enjoy."

MOSCOW AIRPORT HIT BY DRONE ATTACK

UKRAINE has launched a drone attack on Moscow, the Russian defence ministry says, forcing flights to be diverted from Vnukovo International Airport.

Five drones were reportedly used in Tuesday's attack, which also targeted locations in the wider region around the capital.

The defence ministry said all the drones were shot down and there were no casualties or damage.

Ukraine has not claimed responsibility for the alleged attack. Restrictions at Vnukovo airport, one of Moscow's three international airports, have now been lifted. Flights from Turkey, the United Arab Emirates and Egypt were among those affected.

According to the defence ministry, four of the drones flying in the Moscow region were shot down by air defence systems. A fifth was intercepted electronically before crashing.

It was reported that one of the drones, or fragments from it, fell on a building in the village of Krivosheino. The building then caught fire. Russian state media said another drone crashed in Kubinka, which is roughly 22 miles from Vnukovo airport, which lies to the southwest of the city.

This is not the first drone attack to target Moscow. In May, Russia's defence ministry said at least eight drones caused minor damage. It was the first time the city had been targeted by multiple drones since Russia's invasion of Ukraine in February 2022. Kyiv denied responsibility for the attack.

First signs of fall in food prices

SAINSBURY'S said food inflation is "starting to fall" as the supermarket group saw sales boosted by bank holidays and warmer weather.

The UK's second largest grocery chain also said sales volumes returned to growth last year, with shoppers buying more despite the intense pressure on rampant food and drink inflation.

Latest figures from the Office for National Statistics (ONS) show food inflation eased slightly in May but remained at a stubbornly high 18.4%.

Sainsbury's chief executive Simon Roberts said price rises are now stalling, with prices on the retailer's 100 most popular products falling.

Products like bread, butter, milk, pasta and chicken have seen price cuts in recent months as falls in costs further down the supply chain pass through to customers.

It comes amid an ongoing probe by the competition watchdog into accusations supermarkets are profiteering from higher prices.

Banks rapped on saving rates

BANK chief executives have been summoned by the UK's financial watchdog to address concerns that savings rates are not rising as fast as mortgages.

Bosses at Lloyds, HSBC, NatWest and Barclays are to meet the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA).

Higher interest rates have seen banks raise mortgage costs but there are concerns that higher returns are not being passed on to savers.

FCA officials will discuss with the banks the pricing of savings and how they communicate with their customers.

It said: "We think more value can be provided to consumers, we are not happy with some of the lower savings rates, and we want banks to be supporting customers."

'ALLO 'ALLO LED TO BREXIT

A TOP boffin claims that sitcoms such as 'Allo, 'Allo!, Dad's Army and Fawlty Towers led to BREXIT!

University of Birmingham historian, Professor Gavin Schaffer, has contributed a chapter to the book British Humour and the Second World War: Keep Smiling Through.

In it he suggests British people's attitude towards Europe and their wish to be different from 'the continent' is portrayed in these shows.

He argues that 'Allo, 'Allo in particular reflected some of the thinking that lay behind the decision of British people to back Brexit.

'Allo, 'Allo, written mostly by David Croft and Jeremy Lloyd, ran as a pilot on the BBC in 1982 and then aired for nine series between 1984 and 1992.

By COLIN HURST
neil@sundaysport.co.uk

It starred Gordon Kaye as Rene Artois, a French cafe owner who reluctantly becomes involved with the resistance.

Among the characters was an undercover Englishman whose failed attempts at a French accent were part of the show's running gags.

Professor Schaffer said: "Many Britons took 'Allo 'Allo to their hearts as it presented a light-hearted reflection of European differences, that ultimately spoke to the core differences between Britain and her European neighbours."

"The show also tells us something about how British attitudes to Europe were changing and not changing in the late '80 and early '90s, as Britain edged closer to her European neighbours. Despite closer bonds, British voices of Euro-scepticism never strayed too far from suspicions rooted in the Second World War."

He argues in the book that while 'Allo, 'Allo can be seen as an attempt to bury the Germanophobia of the Second World War and work through the European trauma it caused, it also highlighted how different people in Britain felt from other Europeans.

Affection

Professor Schaffer also points out that Fawlty Towers most well-known scene treats the relationship between Brits and Europe as the 'elephant in the room'.

The academic added: "The argument there was something specifically British about being able to laugh at yourself was key to much of the public affection for 'Allo 'Allo."

He added: "This helps to explain British-European relations – illustrating the

TITAN JOKE GOES DOWN BADLY

A SUBWAY branch came under fire after employees displayed a "dastardful" slogan on the restaurant's outdoor marquee sign that seemingly made light of the Titanic submersible implosion that killed five people last month.

The message board below the Subway sign at the chain butty shop in Rincon, Georgia, read: "Our subs don't implode."

All five passengers aboard the OceanGate sub died when it imploded on its way down to see the Titanic wreck on June 18. OceanGate CEO Stockton Rush, Brit Hamish Harding, French Titanic expert Paul-Henri Nargeolet, Shahzad Dawood and his 19-year-old son Sulaiman Dawood perished.

Online commenters felt the Subway message was insensitive.

"@Subway this is your store in Rincon, GA," Amanda Butler tweeted with a photo of the sign. "Not only is it dastardful, it's just sad. Do better."

A manager at the Rincon Subway said the message had been removed but refused to comment further.

To be fair she has magnificent breasts, especially her nips. Shame about the granny knickers!

PHWOAR! Tiddies!

Rita Ora sent temperatures soaring as she arrived at the Azzedine Alaïa show during Paris's Couture Fashion Week.

The singer, 32, slipped into a sheer lace gown that showed off her amazing busters.

Rita opted to bravely go braless beneath it and donned only a skimpy thong to cover her FANNY.

But everything else was on show!

She slipped her feet into towering black heels as she strutted her stuff into the venue alongside a male pal.

Superb

Naturally, the star's fans went wild as Rita showed off her superb boobs.

One fan yelled: "Stick your face between them and go, 'Ubba ubba'."

While another person complimented: "She's filthy, and I mean that in a good way."

Another slobbered: "Two fine mouthfuls there," while one fan added, "Magnificent breasts, especially her nips."

A pal of Rita said: "Rita revels in her unashamed sexuality, but don't expect to see her doing American strength held-open pics with anal dildo."

"There's a fine line between sexy and porn and Rita is in no way interested in doing any porn – now or at any time in the near future. 'More's the pity...'

Jade sex tape destroyed by Big Bro execs

THE makers of Big Brother made sure a Jade Goody and PJ Ellis sex tape didn't get out in 2002, according to the show's narrator Marcus Bentley.

With the pioneering reality series returning to our TV screens this autumn after a five-year break, Marcus, 55, has recalled some of the craziest Big Bro bits.

He said: "There was a bit of hanky-panky. Jade and PJ got it together, supposedly. Apparently, there was a recording of that as obviously they are filming all the time."

"The film was put in a safe because at the time it was a little bit explicit. I never saw it. I have heard that they put it where nobody could have it and later they destroyed it."

Seven years after her appearance on Big Brother, Jade tragically died from cervical cancer at the age of 27, leaving behind two young sons.

Wasteful councils cry for more cash

USELESS councils face a £3bn funding gap just to maintain existing levels of services, local authority chiefs have warned.

The LGA warned that councils could be forced to make cuts to balance their books after wasting billions on hare-brained schemes and Pride flags.

SPANISH BABES BUST OUT!

ANYONE who has unfortunately had to deal with Spanish bureaucracy knows that it is a thankless, frustrating business.

The innate bone-idleness of the Spaniard combined with the traditional bone-headedness and obstructiveness of the pen-pusher combines in an unholy mixture.

But Spain's slow wheels of public admin DO sometimes provide a welcome result...

Spanish officials will now be enforcing rules that will allow women to sunbathe topless in public without fear of arrest.

Women have been allowed to go topless in certain areas of Spain since 2020 under Catalan equality law, but some authorities took action regardless.

Now the government in Spain has confirmed that any authorities preventing women from going topless could be fined up to £430,000.

Some public town swimming pools have stopped women from going topless, due to several complaints over the summer.

But now a letter has been issued stating that stopping ladies from baring all "excludes part of the population and violated the free choice of each person with regard to their body".

Officials have been informed that it is their responsibility to "defend against discrimination for any motive, including sex or gender, religious convictions or dress".

To celebrate, here are some topless sunbathers.

Ant and Dec bring back Byker Grove

TV series Byker Grove is to make a comeback – produced by former stars Ant and Dec.

The children's series – set in Newcastle – aired on the BBC from 1989 to 2006 and focused on the lives of youngsters who attended the youth club of the same name.

It saw Ant McPartlin and Declan Donnelly find fame as PJ and Duncan.

The pair, who will be executive producers on the reboot, said they were “beyond excited”.

The programme – to be simply called Byker – will be aimed “at a primetime audience” and “engage with a new generation of teenagers navigating the different challenges faced by young adults today”.

Donnelly said: “It will help shine a spotlight on the North East and the talent the region has to offer both in front of the camera and behind it.”

“Byker Grove will always be very special to us as the show which gave us our break, so we are beyond excited.”

Average mortgage rate soars to 6.47%

A TYPICAL five-year fixed mortgage deal now has an interest rate above 6%.

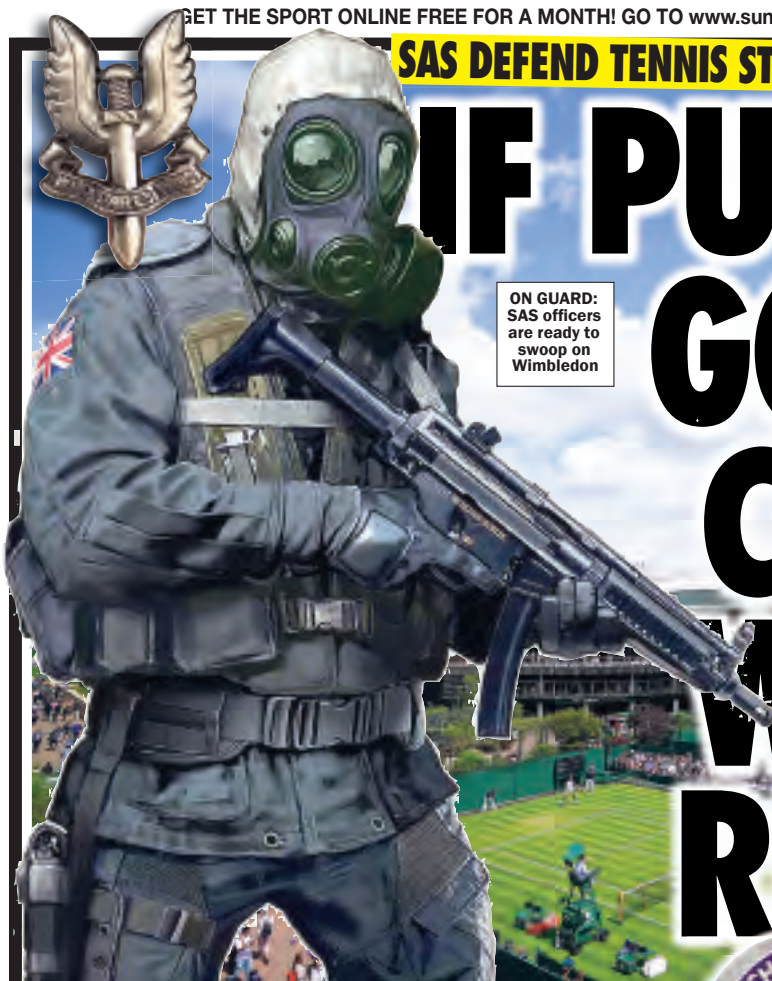

It comes after the Bank of England raised interest rates to a 15-year high of 5% last month, as it tries to bring down inflation.

Mortgage lenders have been increasing rates and withdrawing deals recently, driving up costs for homeowners.

Prime Minister Rishi Sunak has urged homeowners to “hold their nerve” over rising rates.

The average rate for a five-year fixed mortgage stood at 6.01%, according to financial information service Moneyfacts. The average two-year fixed deal is now 6.47%.

The last time those rates both topped 6% was in November last year in the aftermath of then-Chancellor Kwasi Kwarteng's mini-budget. But after a period of calm they have climbed steadily again.

ON GUARD: SAS officers are ready to swoop on Wimbledon

SAS DEFEND TENNIS STARS FROM SLY RUSSIAN ATTACKS...

IF PUTIN'S GOONS COME, WE'RE READY

SAS troopers are on standby amid fears that that Vladimir Putin could order an attack on WIMBLEDON as he struggles to keep hold of power.

Putin is in an increasingly desperate position thanks to the war in Ukraine going tits up. His standing was further hit last month by a coup attempt by the leader of the feared Wagner mercenary group.

Now analysts fear he could rally domestic support by ordering a hit against Britain, widely seen as leading support for Ukraine.

One security analyst shuddered: “Putin has long attempted to paint Britain as the big enemy. Russia and Britain have been at war, on and off, for centuries, after all.

Goons

“An attack on Britain would play well with his supporters. His chemical attacks on Salisbury in 2018 went down well with his more hard-line supporters and he could launch something similar again.”

“And attack on Wimbledon, while the world's eyes are focussed on the tennis, would be one option being considered by his goons.”

It's believed that high-profile names such as Andy Murray, Coco Gauff and Iga Swiatek are getting extra security but they do not have SAS close-protection bodyguards. The famed regiment is apparently being held “in reserve”.

The Ministry of Defence never confirm SAS deployments but a source said “many scenarios have been identified and contingency plans are in place”.

It's not just Russians who are threatening the world's most famous tennis tournament.

Fears around a protest from Just Stop Oil activists – who disrupted the last Ashes Test – has led to airport-style security at Wimbledon, sparking major delays in getting into the All England Club.

Those who arrived at Wimbledon on a rain-affected first day were subjected to airport-style security as staff looked out for chalk dust and powders which have been banned at the prestigious tournament for the first time ever.

Undercover police spotters were also deployed in the queues to try and identify potential protesters.

Wimbledon regulars described the famous queue as the “worst they had ever seen”, while others chose to give up and walk away, leading to fears for those planning to attend during the rest of the first week.

Amid a flurry of criticism about the length of time it was taking to get into the grounds, Wimbledon admitted that queues were longer than previous years.

In a statement they said: “There has been a high demand from members of the public to join the queue on day one at Wimbledon.”

“While there has been a steady stream of guests entering the grounds

REVENGE: Putin wants to hit back since gates opened, entry via the queue has been at a slower rate than previous years as a result of checks.”

Speaking about increased security, Wimbledon chief executive Sally Bolton said: “Of course we've taken account of what we've seen elsewhere, so security has been uplifted in various places around the grounds.”

COCO GAUFF

BUNCH OF BANKERS!

BofE spout woke drivel while inflation surges

THE Bank of England wants the world to know it reckons men can get pregnant.

The UK's central bank, which is under fire for hiking interest rates and for failing to control inflation, is also offering to pay for its staff to undergo gender reassignment surgery under its private healthcare policy.

In an application to be included in LGBT rights charity Stonewall's top 100 employer's list, the bank outlined its parental leave policy in noting it applies to any “birthing parent”.

The government-owned bank's submission explains the gender neutral term refers to the “parent who is/was pregnant with the child but includes persons of any and all gender identities”.

The submission to Stonewall also emphasises the Bank's commitment to gender-neutral toilets as it outlines its plans to upgrade its current facilities.

The plans are set to see the Bank of England convert all toilets on the seventh floor of its London HQ into unisex facilities.

The Bank is facing mounting scrutiny for lifting interest 13 times in a row since December 2021 in its fight to reduce inflation.

Higher interest rates have brought misery for mortgage holders who have seen their monthly payments soar.

In its submission to Stonewall, the Bank of England says all 4,000 of its UK employees will also be given diversity and inclusion objectives which they will be assessed on each year.

Staff are also encouraged to include their pronouns in their email signatures while senior staff are urged to wear rainbow lanyards and display rainbow symbols at their workstations.

The Bank's private healthcare policy already covers gender reassignment surgery.

It also plans to introduce a recruitment system that includes “broader gender definitions” in line with plans for “quantitative targets” for recruiting LGBT staff.

Cop wrote hate texts to herself

A COP who complained about receiving menacing text messages from her colleagues was arrested and suspended after investigators found SHE was responsible for sending them!

Emily Hirshowitz, 36 (above), of the Ossining Police Department in New York, was charged at the Westchester District Attorney's Office with four counts of third-degree falsely reporting an incident, along with three counts of first-degree filing a false instrument.

Beginning in May last year, Hirshowitz filed a report she was receiving anonymous threatening texts from multiple numbers.

She claimed that "a fellow police officer or multiple police officers at my department are involved", according to court documents.

Hirshowitz gave investigators screenshots showing expletive-filled messages urging her to commit suicide.

Prosecutors said the evidence quickly showed Hirshowitz owned the phone numbers the menacing messages had come from, and that she had likely sent them to herself.

Penelope Williams didn't call an ambulance after the man, known as Patient A, collapsed.

Mrs Williams has been struck off by the Nursing and Midwifery Council for bringing the profession into disrepute. The panel heard Mrs Williams, who worked as a general nurse, had met Patient A a year before.

Mrs Williams told police she had gone to the car park after Patient A messaged her saying he was unwell. The next day, she admitted they'd been in a sexual relationship.

Cynthia reveals the sex scene that was too sick for Sex and the City...

SPEW BEAUTY!

news@sundaysport.co.uk

CYNTHIA Nixon revealed a sex scene was cut from Sex and the City because it was too SICK.

During an appearance on Watch What Happens Live with Andy Cohen, the actress revealed her character, Miranda Hobbes, was the subject of an intimate scene cut from the show's third season.

Andy asked during the interview, "Was there a storyline in the early years that was cut out that you wish would've stayed in?"

She said of an episode titled What Goes Around Comes Around: "Miranda dated a really hot detective who she was very intimidated by."

"She thought he was really out of her league, so she got wildly drunk before and during the date.

Vomits

“They didn’t cut that plot, but they cut the sex scene where she’s really, really drunk and then vomits all over him.”

In the episode, Miranda dated Detective Stevens, played by Timothy Gibbs. Miranda met the detective while he was investigating the robbery case of her pal Carrie Bradshaw (Sarah Jessica Parker).

Sex and the City ran for six seasons from 1998 to 2004, and the revival series, And Just Like That..., began in 2021.

Cynthia's character Miranda enjoyed several topless romps with fellas in the original series but in the spin-off, Miranda has now gone lesbian.

Hit the bottle to keep it up

POPPING a cork can help men pop a woody, a new study finds.

It seems to improve the sexual health of women, too.

Those are just a few of the results of a meta-analysis of nearly 30 years of research.

The authors of the new report, published in the Journal of Clinical Medicine, found ample evidence of the ways red wine can help men and women enjoy a healthy sex life.

The research revealed that the antioxidants in red wine can improve vascular health, allowing more blood flow, which helps maintain an erection.

Red wine also can improve levels of testosterone, the hormone responsible for sex drive in men and women.

J-LAW: WHY I LOVE COCK!

By CELINE TAYLORnews@sundaysport.co.uk

HOLLYWOOD sensation Jennifer Lawrence loves the feeling of COCK in her MOUTH!

And the beauty said she prefers "cock" to "bollocks" in a cheeky interview while promoting her latest flick No Hard Feelings.

The raunchy romcom sees the Hunger Games babe, 32, play a desperate Uber driver hired by a wealthy couple to date their awkward teen son.

It leads to a series of risqué moments between the Oscar winner and her younger co-star, Andrew Barth Feldman, 2, including J-Law's first-ever fully nude scene in which fans see her MINGE.

The co-stars recently opened up about their X-rated moments during an interview.

Swearing

While discussing the "iconic swearing" in the film they were both quizzed about what their favourite swear words are.

Jen quickly replied: "Cock."

She went on to explain she thinks "fk" is now so overused, adding: "I just got so used to like you know, stub your toe, 'fk', or like you are mad at somebody, 'fk', or something's good, 'fk!'"

But she revealed switching it out for "cock" felt better.

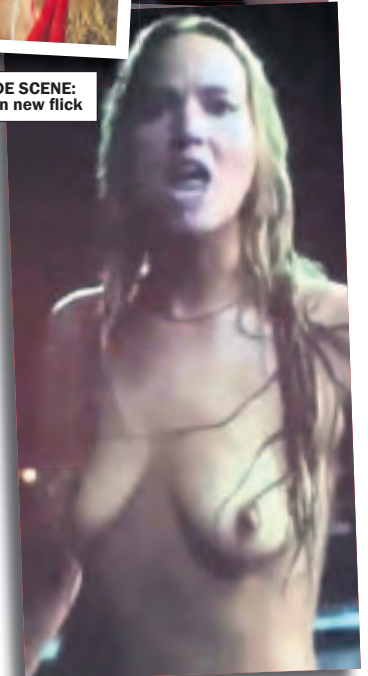

Jennifer pooh-poohed "bollocks", admitting: "It wouldn't satisfy me - it doesn't sound bad... it almost sounds jovial."

Meanwhile, her younger co-star chimed in on the fun, admitting his fave swear word is "Horsefker."

"It's such a violent thing to say but it paints a picture," he added.

#MY SEX FANTASY

MY favourite sexual fantasy has to be a threesome.

I'm actually currently in the process of setting one up! I've had a few before and they were all super hot experiences.

I'll never forget the first time. I was living in New York in my early 20s and I went to a dinner party being held by a new friend.

We had a good giggle and lots of wine, and just as I was about to leave, I had a group hug with my friend and her husband and we all lingered that little bit longer than normal.

Next thing I knew, my neck was being nuzzled and we were all kissing and there was hands everywhere.

It felt wild and frantic.... We went upstairs on their bed and my clothes were removed very quickly. I had the most intense orgasm as I was going down on her while he was pounding me from behind.

The next morning I woke up almost feeling as if it were a dream. But I knew I had to do it again!

I have a new boyfriend now and he's never had a ménage à trois. We've said we are keen to explore that together.

We've put up a dating profile to ask for a hot girl to join us in the bedroom. Luckily we both go for a similar type of woman - we like blond, curvaceous with big boobies!

I'm so excited about showing him how thrilling they can be. I know it will bring us closer together.

'I'm three and easy when it comes to sex!'

Life for kidnap and killing of 'mobile thief'

A WOMAN will spend the rest of her life in prison for her role in the kidnapping and killing of a 29-year-old female, who stole her mobile phone.

Bobie Barncord, 33 (above), was sentenced to life in prison plus 50 years, two months after she was convicted of first-degree murder, kidnapping, conspiracy to kidnap, and arson.

A judge sentenced co-conspirator Willard Turner to life in prison plus 80 years.

The Baltimore Police Department said on August 21, 2018, the victim, Tiffany Jones, got into an argument with two men – one of whom was Turner.

They forced her into a truck where Turner held her at knifepoint.

The following day firemen attended a burning home and found Ms Jones' naked dead body inside.

Barncord helped in the kidnapping, drove the getaway car, and poured lighter fluid on Tiffany while someone else lit the fire, as she thought Jones stole her mobile phone.

Hate crime attack on naked cyclists

A MAN has been arrested for a hate crime involving attacking two cyclists on a naked bike ride.

Nine naked bikers were out cycling in Portland, Oregon, when a man unknown to them swung at the cyclists with a metal pole, hitting two of them in the back.

Robert E. Houchins, 39, then shouted a homophobic slur at the two victims – one of whom was later identified as being gay – and he was arrested.

The man was identified as 39-year-old, who has no listed address.

He now faces charges including second-degree assault, unlawful use of a weapon and first-degree bias crime – the legal term for a hate crime.

JOAN: WHY BORIS IS A STUD!

WRITE-ON: Boris and Joan worked on same mag

ACTING legend Joan Collins reckons Boris Johnson gets so much fanny because of his raw SEX APPEAL.

Dame Joan, who starred in soft porn flicks The Bitch and The Stud, once worked for Boris when he was the editor of The Spectator magazine.

And she said her former boss is "very funny and very charming".

The former PM, 58, has been married three times and currently has seven children.

Charismatic

Dynasty star Joan said: "Boris was the editor of The Spectator when I was still writing my diary for about three or four years.

"And so we were quite happy. He is very, very charismatic, very funny, and very charming.

"So whatever you may think of him, that's my opinion," she laughed.

By JOE LAMB

news@sundaysport.co.uk

However, when pushed to answer if she would lend her support to re-elect him back into Number 10, Joan declined to answer.

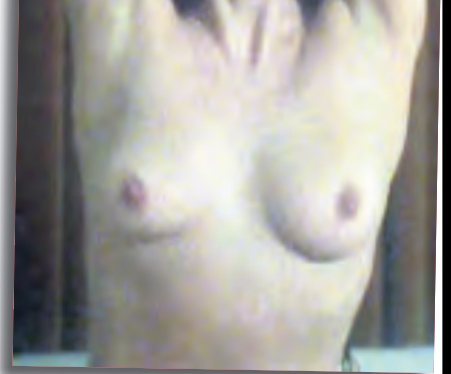

Last month Boris's wife Carrie Symonds, 35, announced she is pregnant with their third child.

Sharing the news on Instagram, Carrie said she had felt "pretty exhausted" for the past eight months but "we can't wait to meet this little one" in a few weeks' time.

The couple, who married in May 2021, already have two children together – three-year-old Wilfred and one-year-old Romy.

Boris has four children from his previous marriage to Marina Wheeler.

Writing on Instagram, Boris added: "Wilf is very excited about being a big brother again and has been chattering about it non-stop."

BEEB 'SPIN' SANDS DEATH

THE Beeb has managed to find a climate change angle in the death of Hollywood actor Julian Sands.

The BBC reported that Sands (left), who died in a California mountain range, said in his last UK interview that many friends had stopped going mountaineering partly because it had become too dangerous because of global warming.

The British star's body was found last week, six months after he went missing.

Speaking to Radio Times late last year, he said: "Pals I used to climb with have stopped going to the mountains".

He said that was "partly because they find, with climate change, the rock faces have become much more unstable".

Also, "partly, it's age", he told the TV listings magazine.

Committed

Sands, who was 64 at the time, said those friends no longer wanted to dedicate themselves to a climb.

"If you don't really have the desire, the focus for climbing a route, if you're not absolutely committed, it becomes much more dangerous and it's a much more deflating experience," he added.

"Finding folk whose company I enjoy in such stressful and intimate conditions is not easy."

Sands, best known for the 1985 film A Room with a View, went missing on a solo trip to Mount Baldy in the San Gabriel Mountains, near Los Angeles, on January 13.

Wintery conditions hampered the search efforts, and hikers found human remains on June 24.

They were later identified to belong to Sands.

The 32D babe from Morley, West Yorkshire, said: "I'll never ask a guy how many girls he's slept with - just in case he asks me too! - but you can normally tell once you get them into bed."

"The ones with the most experience know exactly what they're doing with their cocks - and their hands and tongue too of course!"

WHAT'S ANNOYING HIM THIS WEEK?

If we're not careful, it could happen here, too

TAKING TO THE STREETS:
Rioters in French cities

IT'S all kicking off in France.

Over there, it's because a young man was shot dead by police after deciding not to stop the car that he shouldn't have been driving when they told him to.

Should he have been shot? Clearly, no. Not at all.

The result, as we've all seen, is mass disruption in France's biggest cities and has sparked yet another revival of the conversation that otherwise magnificent Gallic country refuses to have with itself.

The question they face is: Is France a racist country?

And it's a similar question we're continually challenged with here in the UK.

Almost every publicly funded inquiry into how terrible we all are – with its advisors always gay, disabled, people of colour, vegans, the blue-haired, and, even worse, Liberal Democrats – always, always, always decides that we are.

Except for in one or two notable cases.

One was the report by the scholar and frankly very well known, and very learned, broadcaster, writer, author, academic, and all-round fine fellow Sir Trevor Phillips.

Apples

Who said that, apart from bad apples that exist in every community in every society dotted around the entire planet, actually, we're not that bad at all.

Alas, Our Sir Trev's report didn't go down too well with the very well off people whose mums and dads paid for them to go to Oxbridge and then funded their name changes to "Snow" and "Skye".

They resented his report with the high dudgeon only the self-appointed enlightened righteous can exude.

Their problem with Our Sir Trev?

He's broadly a man of the left, and he's black.

And thus smashed the brittle china of the endless race baiting jibes of the left that have rattled ever more loudly since Brexit but were certainly being loudly serenaded before.

The rules – their rules – are that you must agree with them, absolutely, or you're a fascist.

You must acquiesce or face the consequences of being, in their little, still-pubescent minds, "wrong".

It is this maddening mindset that is driving other people – let's face it, most people – round the twist.

I can't speak for other Brexit supporters, but I don't have a problem with gay people, or people of other colours.

I do have a problem, though, with people taking the piss out of our country, and our resources, at almost no expense to themselves.

At the same time, I can completely understand why people in France are rioting on the streets.

Division

The one truth about migration – legal and illegal – is that an influx of people who are never properly integrated into the rest of a country inevitably creates division.

The United States has had this for years.

Hollywood has made billions making movies out of it.

France has for decades had the same problems, too.

We used to think of Norway and Sweden as peaceful nations in fine pine furniture enjoying naked saunas and naked hot pools. And lots of other naked stuff.

But now we also add in rape, bombings, looting, riots and murder.

Unless Rishi, or more likely Starmer, can think of a way of at least trying to stop this, it'll happen here, too.

And nobody ever voted for that.

Murder suspect shoots himself at ex's memorial

A MAN suspected of killing his ex-girlfriend turned a gun on himself after being spotted at her memorial.

Juan Carlos Mata, 20 (above), had been on the run from cops after shooting 19-year-old Lesley Reyes in the head outside her home in Pasadena, Texas.

Officers received a call about a suspicious person creeping around a makeshift memorial at the site where he had been accused of the fatal shooting.

Police arrived within 10 minutes and tried to make contact with Mata, but he gave them the slip.

"Mata went behind a car, fetched a shotgun and committed suicide in front of our officers," Sgt Raul Granados later confirmed.

Police believe the gun was the same one he used to kill Ms Reyes in what police are now calling a murder-suicide.

Investigators said Mata waited outside Ms Reyes's apartment for six hours before launching what police called "an ambush".

Fact me!

SNAKES can sense a coming earthquake from 75 miles away, and up to five days before it happens.

On-the-run roo back at home

AN injured kangaroo was captured by authorities thousands of miles from its Australia home in the US state of Kansas.

The young kangaroo embarked on the unlikely adventure after escaping from an exotic animal farm, according to cops.

Edwardsville police department officers trapped the marsupial in netting and kept it in a police cell ahead of a check-up from a vet.

In a bizarre request, authorities then asked the public for help.

"If your kangaroo wandered off last night, or you may have seen one in the area, please let us know," Edwardsville police said.

The owners of the kangaroo were found and later told police they run a business featuring exotic animals, and the kangaroo managed to escape while being taken back from a petting zoo held at a local library.

Dear Bexi,

MY secretary is 21, with long, blonde hair and a fantastic body and every Monday morning in the office I get all the details about her filthy one-night stands.

A couple of months ago I told her that it was my 40th birthday soon and laughingly asked her for a blowjob to celebrate.

To my astonishment, and delight, she said yes and added that she had been wanting to please me sexually for quite some time.

I was rock-hard as she sucked me off to completion in my office. Since then we have been shagging, too.

Now a regional manager's job has become vacant and she wants it. I don't think she's suitable, but she says if she doesn't get it I can't shag her any more.

What should I do?

FE, Tyneside

Bexi says...
PROMOTE her - you should be guaranteed plenty of office fun!

Dear Bexi,

I'VE just got back from a girls' holiday in Crete, where I had my first lesbian experience.

There were 20 of us in total but there were a few of the girls I didn't really know, friends of friends kind of thing.

One girl in particular caught my attention. She was blonde, with a body I'd die for, and had a really bubbly personality.

One night me and this girl got separated from our friends and somehow ended up going for a midnight walk along the beach.

The warm sea breeze and alcohol must have got to our heads because it wasn't long before we were kissing and caressing each other as the surf lapped against our feet.

I quickly came as she thrust her tongue in and out of my mouth and probed my vagina with her fingers.

Does this mean I'm a lesbian?

AM, Lincolnshire

Bexi says...
NOT at all. Just put it down to a holiday romance.

Hotel guests complained about our sizzling romps

Dear Bexi,

I'M a pretty fit 50 and my wife is 15 years younger than me and a real looker.

We have a very active sex life and I like to make sure my missus is completely satisfied.

I would hate to think she wasn't pleased by me in the bedroom, because it worries me that she might find another younger bloke to shag instead.

Recently, we went on holiday to Majorca and stayed at a lovely hotel a pal of mine had recommended a couple of years ago.

We had a great time there - lounging by the pool during the day, going for candlelit dinners in the evening and then back to our room for red-hot sex sessions.

Unfortunately, we were in a room on the ground floor and a young family spotted us at it one night when we forgot to draw the curtains!

It wasn't the first time, apparently, and we got banned from the hotel after the manager had received a few complaints about our romps.

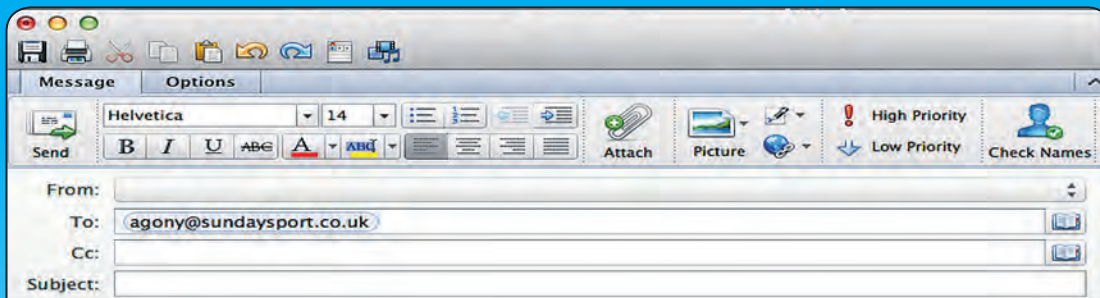

Is this right?

RS, Lancs

Bexi says...
JUST go to a different hotel.

AGONY IS BROUGHT TO YOU IN ASSOCIATION

WELCOME to the World famous Sport Agony page! No other newspaper's agony aunts can offer the level of advice – or experience – than our own Agony Angels! This week BEXI WILLIAMS has been reading through your letters. And here's her advice for you...

My well-hung hunk is a shooting star!

Dear Bexi,

I'VE been reading reports that say blokes these days have got a low sperm count and that even the fluid the sperm is in is in short supply.

Well, I don't know what they base their figures on, or where they did their research, but they should have come round to check out my fella.

When it comes to shooting out a load, then my man is the best I have ever been with.

Going down on him and giving him oral is definitely one of the best treats of my life.

I always look forward to climbing into bed with him and getting my lips round his tasty cock.

Not only is it very tasty, but he lasts one hell of a long time – and when he does finally shoot his load, then there is no shortage at all.

The thick, delicious jizz seems to spurt from him forever and a day.

I have loads of orgasms as it smotheres my face and have even more when I use my fingers and wipe the creamy stuff from my face and then give my fingers a good sucking.

Juicy

Then, of course, it's his turn to provide me with some tongue action and he's certainly an expert.

First, he spreads my thighs wide while I pull my juicy pussy lips apart for him.

Then he laps at my aching quim for ages while I diddle my hard little love-button to bring on even more shattering orgasms.

This gives him time to get his strength back and soon he's on top of me, pumping that magnificent tool deep and hard inside me until he comes all over again.

So I reckon the researchers have it all wrong. What do you say?

WJ, Essex

Bexi says...

I say lucky you!

Dear Bexi,

I RECENTLY had my head shaved and the girls at work love rubbing my smooth bonce.

I got a hard-on when one was doing it and she told me to go for a tug.

What shall I do?

HS, Birmingham

Bexi says...

ASK for a handjob!

Hot babe made me gush in park bush

Dear Bexi,

ISN'T it just amazing how a little bit of sunshine seems to bring all the nice women out?

The other day I went for a walk in the park and couldn't believe the number of horny babes in short skirts.

At one point I didn't know which way to look, but then one particular lassie caught my eye.

She was a blonde stunner with a body to die for and was wearing a tiny tartan skirt and knee-length boots.

Now I regard myself as a bit of a smoothie with the ladies and it wasn't long before I grabbed her attention.

We sat down on the grass and my tongue was soon down her throat.

After a few minutes of hoovering each other's faces, I suggested we sneak off into one of the bushes.

She was up for that and quickly had my trousers down to my ankles before dropping to her knees to suck on my cock.

I was soon ready to explode, so I bent her over and fked her doggy-style.

When we'd both come, the saucy minx just put her knickers back on and walked off without saying a word.

What do you think about that?

DG, Glasgow

Bexi says...

YOU copped off lucky, pal. But I'd be a bit careful about picking up strange women in parks.

Dear Bexi,

I WAS enjoying a blowjob from a barmaid behind the pub beer garden and I was certain no-one could see us.

But just as I came on her 34DDs, I'm sure I saw the missus looking over the wall.

She hasn't said anything – yet – but she is being very cool towards me.

What should I do?

DS, Norfolk

Bexi says...

SAY nothing and pray it wasn't her.

Dear Bexi,

I HAVE this crazy fantasy and I just have to share it with you.

It starts off where I am naked in a garden and have cream rubbed into my breasts and jam smeared generously over my erect nipples.

I then want a thick carrot pushed deep into my juicy fanny by another woman.

She masturbates me with it, slowly building up the power and speed until I have a massive and uncontrolled orgasm.

While she is working the carrot in and out of my aching pussy, I have this man come along and lick the jam off my tits.

He then pushes his hard prick between my eager lips and I suck him off vigorously until he shoots his thick wad of hot jizz down my throat.

Nobody says a word, it's just raw lust as we roll around in a sticky mess of sweat and love juice.

After we have all been satisfied, the other two get dressed and go their separate ways.

Is this an odd thing to wish for?

JO, Somerset

Bexi says...

THAT rather depends on what type of jam you're considering. My favourite is blueberry.

The 34D beauty, who is now living in Sunderland, said: "I thought people were joking when they said it always rains here in England."

"Before I arrived, there was all this news about a heatwave and it being even hotter than in Spain."

"But as soon as I landed at Newcastle airport, it started raining and I don't think it has stopped once since then."

"I will just have to think of fun to have indoors."

"Any suggestions, anyone?"

NAUGHTY Nancy Allen may be a dab hand in the kitchen, but she still loves eating out at fancy restaurants.

Because Nancy, from Pontefract in West Yorks, reckons it's the perfect way to get her in the mood for bonking.

The blonde, who boasts perky 32Cs, said: "I love being wined and dined in the fanciest eateries."

"To be fair, there's not that much fine dining in Pontefract, so I love to be whisked over to fancy Leeds and taken to a proper nice restaurant."

"I like to dress up in a clingy dress and wear my best lingerie. It's one way to get me into bed!"

KHAADEM

Ascot winner Khaadem up for July Cup

ROYAL Ascot hero Khaadem is likely to be supplemented for the July Cup at Newmarket later this month, as long as conditions remain dry in the lead up to the feature sprinting showdown.

Charlie Hills' seven-year-old has always threatened to be a high-class speedster and finally landed a long-awaited Group One victory when a shock 80-1 winner of the Queen Elizabeth II Jubilee Stakes at the Royal meeting.

The son of Dark Angel is reported to have bounced out of his Ascot run well and connections now appear keen to try to strike again while the iron is hot, with the gelding poised to be added to the line-up for the six-furlong contest on July 15, where opponents could include Commonwealth Cup one-two, Shaquille and Little Big Bear.

"He's come out of Ascot really well. We haven't done much with him since, but he's been cantering and moving nicely," said Hills.

"It's taken a while to get the Group One, it was his ninth attempt someone told me. But we've always liked him a lot and especially when he won the Stewards' Cup as a three-year-old, he looked like he was going to be a really good horse. It's just taken a long time to get to where we are now.

"We didn't put him in the July Cup, but I would say if it stays dry there is a good possibility he will be supplemented for it.

"There are a couple of three-year-olds coming into the equation now which makes things more intriguing and it will be interesting to see how they do, but it's mostly similar types of horses that we beat the other day, so I think it's the obvious race to go for if it does stay dry.

"He loves fast ground so if it does stay dry, we will have a good look at it."

distinction in the Hay silks at the Royal meeting was the consistent Equilateral, who finished fifth behind Bradsell in the King's Stand Stakes.

It was the eight-year-old's fourth appearance in the opening-day Group One and he will now head to Sandown's Coral Charge on Saturday looking for more luck than when suffering plenty of interference in sixth behind Raasel in the contest last year.

Hills continued: "He's always run well at Ascot. He's been second, he ran well there last year and obviously did well again this year.

"The race he is in this weekend, he was very unlucky in it last year, he never got a run at all. We hope for a bit of better luck this time. He is in great form with himself."

Co-trainers Martyn and Freddie Meade will drop Dubai Mile back in distance and wait for soft ground in the autumn as they bid to secure his future as a stallion.

"He is here and the idea is clearly he has to do a bit more to be a stallion yet," Martyn Meade confirmed.

"The idea is we will campaign him for the rest of the season and maybe even next season if we need to, because he needs to win a couple more, at least one and maybe two Group Ones.

"That's what we will be targeting him for, but at the moment we will be giving him a break."

ALL THE TOP TIPS FOR TODAY'S RACING

MR WAGYU

I've got no beef with Mr Wagyu

By MIKE FRANCIS

MR WAGYU looks a tasty proposition at Thirsk on Wednesday when he has his sights slightly lowered in the Download The Vickers.Bet App Handicap.

John Quinn's eight-year-old has been a consistent performer in the sprinting ranks over the past few seasons and gave signal he was ready to return to the winner's enclosure with a fine effort in defeat at Royal Ascot.

On that occasion he was beaten just shy of three lengths in a typically competitive running of the Wokingham and with the right horses finishing close by, the form looks worthy of following.

Division

Given a reprieve from the handicapper since last finding the scoresheet, Mr Wagyu is beginning to look well-handicapped animal.

He was dropped a further 11lb for his Ascot endeavours and now finds himself 5lb lower than when taking the Curragh's Scurry handicap last summer and just a 1lb higher than his victory at Epsom prior to that.

In the first division of the British EBF Restricted

Novice Stakes, Richard Fahey's She's A Gambler should prove tough to beat if in the same form as her debut victory at Wetherby, while Mubhijah has been knocking on the door behind some handy operators of late – including over course and distance last time – and has a great opportunity to get off the mark in the British EBF Novice Stakes.

Also at Thirsk, John Wainwright's Biplane appeals in the Northern Safety Limited Handicap.

The consistent five-year-old relished the drop back to seven furlongs at Redcar recently and although she has a stiff looking figure to contend with, she has seemed to enjoy a switch to turf of late. It would be no surprise to see her well in the mix once again.

Now that Tralee Hills is back to form, Simon Hodgson's charge could be poised to land Epsom's Bedford Ladies' Derby Handicap for a second time.

The nine-year-old was an impressive winner of this contest in 2021 and although following up that victory on his next start, he had failed to plot his way to the winner's enclosure until striking at Bath in April.

That was the perfect way to step up on his seasonal reappearance at Pontefract and with 2021 winning rider Serena Brotherton inked in to do the steering, a repeat of his finest hour could be on the cards.

Another course specialist to keep onside on the Surrey Downs is the locally-trained Marlay Park who is back for another crack at the Bedford Challenge Cup August 12 Handicap.

Jim Boyle's five-year-old finished second in this contest 12 months ago, but has since found the scoresheet twice over course and distance and in two other runs at the track was beaten a neck when second and made the podium once again to finish third last month.

Smile

In the Bedford Nifty Fifty Handicap, Havana Pusey is interesting on handicap debut judged by her effort in Listed company at Sandown most recently.

She was slowly away and hung through greenness on that occasion, yet was still only beaten just over four lengths, and there could be plenty more to come from this lightly-raced filly who has an opening mark of 83.

North of the border at Musselburgh, it could be Chinese Spirit who puts a smile on punters' faces.

Linda Perratt's evergreen nine-year-old is twice a course-and-distance winner and having finished second in his last three outings, could now grab the victory his efforts have deserved in the Visit racingtv.com Handicap.

He looks a decent bet to land the spoils.

Bairstow shocker can win us Ashes

McCULLUM CONFIDENT PLAYERS WILL BE FIRED UP TO GET JUSTICE

BRENDON McCullum believes the furore over Jonny Bairstow's dismissal at Lord's could be the turning point for England's Ashes campaign, and predicted Australia would come to regret their part in the controversy.

Alex Carey's opportunistic stumping of his fellow wicketkeeper during a dramatic conclusion to the second Test sparked unprecedented fury from fans and members at the home of cricket and the row showed no signs of slowing down on Monday.

Ex-players and pundits from both countries weighed in on the incident and the matter even reached the door of Number 10 Downing Street, with Prime Minister Rishi Sunak declaring it a breach of the spirit of cricket via his official spokesperson.

But when it comes to the battle for the urn, which Australia lead 2-0 with three to play, how it affects the players in each dressing room is the only issue which really matters.

McCullum believes the flashpoint could stiffen England's resolve to mount a fightback, with captain Ben Stokes providing the template when he responded to Bairstow's untimely exit by unloading a brutal 155 in what felt like a personal revenge mission.

And for those involved in the dismissal, the England coach expects a sense of remorse may one day creep in despite current protestations to the contrary.

Effect

"I imagine it will affect things, it has to," he said, as he cast an eye to Thursday's third Test at Headingley.

"In the end, they made a play, they've got to live with that. We would have made a different play but that's life. In time, we'll see, but I get the feeling that it might have an effect on them.

"I don't know if it's anger, but our unit is galvanised. There are times as a coach where you've got to reduce emotion because it's going to bubble over and you can make poor decisions, but there's times when you allow emotion to go because it's going to galvanise the unit.

"That's what I felt this emotion did for the side. I looked around the group and the guys were a little upset. If that helps us to win those key moments in the next Test, then I'm all for it. (Winning) 3-2 has a nice ring to it."

On Stokes, who said he would have withdrawn the appeal in the same position, McCullum was effusive: "Not just is he a tremendous cricketer, a n d w h a t h e d i d a t

Lord's was out of this world, but his leadership is something that you just cannot over-estimate.

"Not just the moves he makes on the field, but the way he carries himself, the way he talks to the team, his conviction, his belief in all of the guys, his morals. Not just for the team but the game moving forward.

"We are so lucky to have him as our leader."

McCullum's initial reaction in the aftermath of Australia's 43-run victory was to cast doubt on taking part in the traditional post-series drinks between the rival teams. He was criticised for being hypocritical in some quarters, with instances from his own playing days held up as evidence.

McCullum's run out of Sri Lanka's Muttiah Muralitharan as he celebrated a team-mate's century in 2006 was cited by some, but the New Zealander says he long ago accepted that was poor judgement.

"I've made an apology to Murali in my Cowdrey Lecture (in 2016).

Maturity

"When I was a younger man I didn't quite understand the significance of what the game and the spirit of the game means," he explained.

"It's what the defining point of the game is compared to others, and it's only with the benefit of time and experience that we're able to learn that and cherish it.

"I think with the benefit of time and maturity as a player you understand how vital the spirit of the game is to this great game that we play, and you make decisions that you sometimes look back on and say did I get that right?"

KNOCKED OUT: Dart

Dart gutted after Wimbo walloping

HARRIET Dart was gutted she saved her worst for Wimbledon after becoming the first British casualty of this year's tournament.

Dart was beaten 6-7 (4) 6-0 6-4 by Frenchwoman Diane Parry in a poor display on Court 12.

It was a bitter blow considering the 26-year-old's excellent form in the build-up to her home grand slam, having reached the quarters in Nottingham and Birmingham.

She was not able to produce her best when it mattered on the big stage, though, and she was left with regrets.

"I felt pretty poor out there," she admitted. "What's amazing was I had a chance to win playing not great tennis.

"I still feel like I have so much to improve on.

"I've had a really good grass-court season. It's just disappointing that my worst match of the grass-court season came here.

"Naturally being British, you want to play well here.

"I just didn't really get going. She also made it tricky for me. Credit to her, she played better tennis than me today."

Dart played the match with strapping on her shoulder.

She added: "We've just been managing it. It's not been a serious problem. But, since Birmingham I've had issues with it. I've been fine to play on it."

FUMING: Bairstow

Reid back as Forest coach

FORMER Ireland star Steven Reid has returned to Nottingham Forest as first-team coach a year after leaving for a new challenge.

Reid, 42, left Steve Cooper's staff 12 months ago after playing his part in the club's return to the Premier League to become a specialist coach offering support to players around mental well-being.

He has now rejoined Forest, where he served briefly as interim manager following Chris Hughton's departure in 2021.

Reid said: "It is a club that has stayed close to my heart for many reasons, firstly because of the amazing journey to promotion, but also because of the support I felt from within the club and the amazing fanbase when stepping away from football to do some work around mental health and well-being."

Barmy Army are gunning for cheats

HEADINGLEY HELL WAITING FOR AUSSIES

AUSTRALIA have been warned to expect a Headingley backlash as they attempt to complete an Ashes series victory in the wake of their controversial second Test win over England.

The old foes reconvene in Leeds on Thursday with the fall-out from Sunday's dramatic success at Lord's, which was due in part to Jonny Bairstow's disputed second innings dismissal, still ongoing.

Chris Millard, managing director of the England supporters group the Barmy Army – which received no allocation at headquarters but will be in full voice at Headingley – is convinced the tourists will feel the full force of a home crowd still furious with the way in which they edged into a 2-0 lead.

Lively

Millard said: "The Headingley crowd is usually a louder, noisier crowd, to put it one way."

"There are still going to be quite a few upset people, I think, at Headingley and it will be a very lively atmosphere, and that potentially could play quite a pivotal part in the result, and I'm hoping that's an English benefit."

"It's a really strong ground for England. I was there, Ben Stokes, 2019 – that was one of the greatest days in my time of being with the

CRICKET By JOHN ANTHONY

Barmy Army, one of the greatest days I've ever had watching England cricket.

"You just get that real sense of togetherness at Headingley and community and they will get behind the team. It's a very proud cricketing county, is Yorkshire. It's gone through a lot of jeopardy and it needs a bit of positive energy there. "Hopefully the England team will provide a spectacular win and make it 2-1."

Yorkshire's Bairstow, batting at number seven as England chased an unlikely 371 for victory, was stumped by wicketkeeper Alex Carey for 10 after leaving his crease at the end of the 52nd over believing the ball was dead.

The Australians' appeals were rewarded amid anger on and off the pitch and skipper Pat Cummins opted not to recall the Englishman, whose side were reduced to 193 for six as a result.

Inspired skipper Ben Stokes then unleashed an all-out assault on his way to a remarkable 155, but was unable to prevent England from slipping to a 43-run defeat, although even his heroics were not the main talking point afterwards.

Millard said: "If you look at the rules, in the book it is out. But what you can question is the spirit of cricket and the core values and competencies of cricket as a game is established on."

"Unfortunately, I think the spirit of cricket has to be questioned now, what that actually means and will we use the term, 'It's just not cricket' ever again?"

"The way the game is played is ultimate competition, but there's always that element of conduct and the spirit of cricket that usually gets to the fairest and the right result."

Former England captain Sir Geoffrey Boycott has called on Australia to issue "a full public apology" for the controversial stumping of Bairstow.

England skipper Stokes suggested he would have reversed the appeal and one of his best known predecessors, Boycott, backed him up in typically forthright fashion.

"Australia need to have a think about what they did and make a full public apology," he said.

Wrong

"That way it will redress the situation and everyone can move on. These teams have played brilliant cricket in great spirit and it is a shame when something like that happens to spoil it all."

"Australia have now had time to think about what happened. We all make mistakes in the heat of the moment. People will think better of the Australians if they put their hands up and say 'we got it wrong'. That is the way to go. Let's see over the next few days if they are man enough to do that."

"If you want to win at all costs then cricket should not be for you.

We want people to play hard and fair but surely there are standards to uphold? When batsmen are not trying to take an advantage then you should not follow the letter of the law. Apply some common sense."

Justin Langer, the former head coach who took charge of Australia's last two Ashes campaigns, lined up on the opposite side of the debate.

He praised Carey for being alert and suggested Bairstow was guilty of leaving himself vulnerable.

"Alex Carey has been criticised, unfairly. His wicketkeeping has been supreme and he is also a man of impeccable character," Langer said.

"Bairstow's dreaming should not come back on Carey. Not for a moment. Quick thinking under pressure was the antithesis to Bairstow's lack of awareness. In my opinion, there is no way Australia were looking to breach the spirit of the game. They have learned from past experience that there are no winners in this."

"In this case perhaps the spirit of the game has been breached by the same people who are throwing stones and reacting without any recourse."

Former Australia international Brad Hogg was unimpressed by the incident.

The 52-year-old, who played seven Tests and 138 limited-overs internationals for Australia, said: "I was disappointed from the start, I thought they should have called Bairstow back."

FITNESS FEAR: Pope

England pray Pope will be fit

ENGLAND will continue to check on Ollie Pope's injured shoulder as they look to keep their Ashes hopes alive at Headingley this week.

The vice-captain hurt his shoulder while fielding in the first innings of the 43-run defeat at Lord's and went on to aggravate the problem when a misunderstanding with the match officials led England to believe they could not use a substitute fielder later in the game. He made 42 and three in the match, batting in his regular spot at three.

The 25-year-old has been retained in a 15-man squad for Thursday's crucial third Test, which England need to win to stand a chance of overturning a 2-0 deficit, but it is not yet clear if he will be passed fit.

Essex batsman Dan Lawrence, who won the last of his 11 caps in the West Indies 16 months ago, is the spare batter in the squad and would be in line for a recall if Pope is forced to pull out.

Head coach Brendon McCullum said: "We will check Ollie and work it out. We will see how he is."

"I was so proud of Ollie, to do what he did (at Lord's). He's a tough kid to bat at number three and want to make an impact."

"That 40-odd in the first innings, he was suffering a lot of pain, but he was able to invest in the team and put that to one side and operate."

"He's obviously our vice-captain as well and a fantastic leader in the group, albeit at a young age."

England could look to freshen up their bowling attack after a brief three-day turnaround, with James Anderson and Ollie Robinson the likeliest to make way.

Spinner Moeen Ali, who was not risked for the second Test due to a nasty wound on his right index finger, is in contention to return and Mark Wood will bring his express 90mph pace to the side if the medical staff are confident he can get through the match.

Wood has not played competitive red-ball cricket since December and could not guarantee he would be able to operate at top speed consistently at Lord's. Chris Woakes is also available and brings a strong home record with the Dukes ball as well reliable lower-order batting.

BECKS BACKS JUDE'S MOVE

JUDE Bellingham has revealed David Beckham sent him a good luck message after joining Real Madrid.

The 20-year-old has become just the seventh British player to join the Bernabeu club following his 103million euros (£88.5m) move from Borussia Dortmund last month, following in the footsteps of the likes of Beckham, Gareth Bale and Michael Owen.

Beckham was perhaps the highest profile to make the switch to the Spanish capital following his 2003 move from Manchester United, which only heightened his global profile, and the former England captain recently got in touch with Bellingham.

And the new Bernabeu star said he might tap into Beckham and other former players' knowledge of playing at Madrid.

"David Beckham messaged me briefly to wish me all the best," Bellingham said.

"It is one of those moves where everyone has their input from the outside so you do hear a lot of things and advice, I am quite good at filtering out the good from the bad, so far it has been really positive from ex-players.

"I will try and take that on board and at some point maybe get in touch with them and see how they adapted to life in Spain."

One of the things Bellingham will be doing to adapt to his new lifestyle in Spain is to learn the language.

The midfielder has started using a learning app, aiming to build on the vocabulary he got at school.

"I have got it on my phone, I've got a good little streak going at the minute," he added.

"It's nine days since I started taking it properly seriously.

"It is one of those things where you hear it and you start to pick up little things and you see it on TV with interviews of other players, so it comes a bit more naturally than you think.

Greater

"It is a lot easier than trying to learn German at least. I did Spanish at school up to year 9, obviously, in hindsight, I would have carried it on."

Bellingham is now an ambassador for McDonald's Fun Football programme, the largest grassroots programme in the UK for 5-11 year olds, where 250,000 children have had access to free football in the last 12 months.

He used to attend similar events but admits that it was not immediately obvious that he was destined for greater things as a footballer.

"For the first year or so of going to things like that I was more interested in British Bulldog and some of the fun games," he said.

"So for me it was a process of getting into the game, but it was made easy because there was no pressure on me.

"For my parents that was the main thing, just getting that social aspect of it and something that is healthy and good for me."

SUPPORT: Beckham

IT'S HAAL OR NOTHING FOR MURLEY

CADAN Murley has been analysing prolific Manchester City striker Erling Haaland to sharpen his own finishing as he targets a place in England's World Cup squad.

Murley is happy to put his support for Man United on hold in the belief that even though Haaland plays a different sport, his predatory instincts provide a valuable insight into scoring.

Haaland set a new scoring record in a Premier League season with 52 – 36 in the top flight – as he helped City complete the treble, while Murley proved equally deadly in the Premiership by ending 2022-23 at the top of the try chart with 15. "Every sportsman looks at other sports to see how they can improve and you've just got to look at Haaland's goalscoring record – it's been absolutely incredible. As a United fan that's a pretty tough thing to say!" Harlequins wing Murley said.

"For a lot of those goals he's been called a tap-in merchant, but you have to be in the right place at the right time. A lot of that is down to his relationships and his understanding of the players around him.

"He's got some of the best assistants around him – Kevin De Bruyne, Bernardo Silva, Riyad Mahrez – but he still has to be in the right place at the right time to know how to finish.

"Watching him play, he's always so alert, he's always live in the play and looking around for where the opportunity is going to come.

"And a lot of wingers these days, that's where they tries come. You need to read the game early and know who is around you.

"At Quins, we've got Andre Esterhuizen and Alex Dornbrandt and they are the two who are going to look for the offload the most, so if I can flood in around them, I know that's when the touch is going to come.

"I know Marcus

Smith prefers to kick one way, or when he looks a couple of times that's when he's going to do it. Little things like that, having those relationships, is massive."

The task now facing Murley is to develop his familiarity with his England team-mates having been picked in a 41-man World Cup training squad that will be reduced to 33.

The uncapped 23-year-old has been working on his aerial skills but it is understanding the nuances of playmakers such as Owen Farrell and George Ford that will be key to securing his place at France 2023.

"Haaland joined City and fitted in seamlessly, which is a skill in itself. It's about working on how you can come in and do that as quickly as possible in this environment," Murley said. "We're all chucked together and all play a different way. Getting to know people on and off the pitch firstly will help.

"Then going through different clips from training, watching different clips of people during the training and analysis.

"I've got those relationships with the Quins lads, but we don't know who's going to get picked so I need to have relationships with all the 41-man squad."

JOSKO UP FOR CITY TRANSFER

Top-rated defender desperate to exit Leipzig and sign for Pep's champions

RB LEIPZIG defender Josko Gvardiol has expressed an interest in joining Manchester City, the German club's sporting director has revealed.

Max Eberl has told a German newspaper that the Croatia international has informed the Bundesliga outfit of his desire to move and that "talks" are ongoing.

There is no indication City have officially submitted a bid for the player and the treble winners have not commented on Eberl's claims.

Eberl told Leipziger Volksnachrichten: "Josko and his advisers have submitted the wish to us for a transfer to Manchester City."

"We are in talks with Manchester. There is nothing more to say about it at this moment."

Gvardiol, 21, has long been linked with City and caught the eye when he scored against them in the Champions League last season.

By PAUL THOMAS

Leipzig reportedly value Gvardiol at around £86million but are under little pressure to sell as the player is contracted until 2027.

The club have already sold one key player this summer, with Hungary midfielder Dominik Szoboszlai moving to Liverpool for £60million at the weekend.

City have already made one new signing, with £30m midfielder Mateo Kovacic arriving from Chelsea.

NEWCASTLE have completed their swoop for AC Milan star Sandro Tonali as they gear up for a return to Champions League football.

The 23-year-old Italy midfielder has signed for an undisclosed fee – understood to be in excess of £50million – on an initial deal which will keep him at St James' Park until 2028.

Tonali, who has 14 senior caps, has captained his country at the European Under-21s Championship in Georgia and Romania in recent weeks and the announcement of his signing came a day after the Italians exited the competition.

The former Brescia player said: "First of all, I want to thank Newcastle United because they are giving me a huge opportunity for my career."

Finish

"I want to repay the trust on the pitch, giving it my all, as I always have. I'm really excited about playing at St James' Park, I can't wait to feel the warmth of the fans."

Tonali is the kind of marquee signing Magpies head coach Eddie Howe has been targeting since guiding the club to a top-four Premier League finish last season to end a two-decade exile from Europe's most prestigious club competition.

Howe has signalled his intention to recruit quality rather than quantity this summer while remaining within the bounds of the spending limits under which a club which had invested more than £250million in the first three transfer windows under its new Saudi-backed owners must operate.

He has acknowledged the difficulty of competing on the domestic and European fronts next season.

However, landing a player of Tonali's stature is an indication of the direction Newcastle hope to take and the 45-year-old was delighted to have got his man.

Howe said: "I'm delighted to welcome Sandro to Newcastle United. He is an exceptional talent and has the mentality, physicality and technical attributes to be a great fit for us."

"At 23, Sandro already has important experience as a key player in one of Europe's top leagues and in the Champions League, as well as playing for his country."

"But he also has the opportunity and potential to grow and evolve with us, and I'm excited to add him to our squad as we approach the exciting season ahead."

Tonali began his career at Brescia, where he helped the club win promotion to Serie A, and moved to Milan during the summer of 2020, on a season-long loan deal.

Contract

He leaves with 130 appearances to his name in the Italian top flight and having played in all 12 of the Rossoneri's Champions League fixtures last season as they made it to the semi-finals, where they were beaten by arch-rivals Inter.

BRIGHTON have signed Dutch Under-21 keeper Bart Verbruggen from Anderlecht, the Premier League club have announced.

The 20-year-old has signed a five-year contract at the Amex. Verbruggen helped the club reach the quarter-finals of the Europa Conference and made his debut for the Dutch Under-21 side last month. He also earned a senior call-up in March.

Seagulls head coach Roberto De Zerbi said: "I am very pleased to have signed Bart.

"He is used to playing a type of football similar to ours and he will have no problem fitting in.

"He has the potential to become a very important player for the club in the coming years."

Verbruggen began his career with hometown club NAC Breda and has also represented his country at Under-18 level.

Brighton also confirmed defender Joel Veltman has signed a new two-year contract on the south coast.

The 31-year-old joined from Ajax in 2020 and has made 106 appearances for the Seagulls.

"I am very pleased that he has extended his contract.

"He is a good example to the other players, and he will be a key and important player for us," De Zerbi said.

KYOGO BOOST FOR BRENDAN

BRENDAN Rodgers says Kyogo Furuhashi's new four-year deal at Celtic is "brilliant news".

The Japan striker, 28, has scored 54 goals in 83 games since signing from Vissel Kobe in 2021 and is now tied to the Parkhead club until 2027.

Rodgers, beginning his second stint as Hoops boss, said: "It is brilliant news for the club. Kyogo is an important player for us so I am delighted he has signed a new contract."

"Kyogo has thrived since he arrived in Scottish football and has shown his outstanding qualities."

"In two seasons, he has secured five domestic honours, scored over 50 goals and become a treble winner. This takes a lot of hard work, dedication and sacrifice both on and off the pitch."
